DPRK-PRC FRIENDSHIP FROM ONE CENTURY INTO THE NEXT

Juche 111 (2022)

The Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the People's Republic of China have a long history and traditions of friendship.

The peoples of the two countries deepened fraternal relations and solidarity through their arduous and bloody struggle against the imperialists' invasion and have steadily strengthened their relations of friendship and cooperation on the road of realizing their common ideals and purposes.

The leaders of elder generations including President Kim Il Sung of the DPRK, and Chairman Mao Zedong and Premier Zhou Enlai of the PRC made frequent mutual visits free from the diplomatic conventions and formalities and laid a cornerstone for the development of friendly relations between the parties and peoples of their countries.

Kim Jong Il, Chairman of the National Defence Commission of the DPRK, strengthened and developed to a higher level the DPRK-PRC friendship created and cultivated by the leaders of elder generations.

Early in the 1980s, he paid a visit to China and met Hu Yaobang, General Secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China. During his visit, he provided a sure guarantee for inheriting and developing the traditional DPRK-PRC friendship from one generation into the next, writing a new chapter in the history of relations of friendship between the parties and peoples of the two countries.

In the new century, too, Kim Jong Il made several visits to China. During his visits he met General Secretary Jiang Zemin and General Secretary Hu Jintao and had candid talks with them on the issues of mutual concern, further promoting the mutual understanding, confidence, friendship and cooperation between the two parties and two countries and dynamically encouraging the common struggle of the two peoples to promote peace and stability of the Korean peninsula and the rest of the world including Asia.

The friendship, which was created in the flames of the arduous struggle on the basis of the common aspirations and desires of the peoples of the two countries and overcame every manner of vicissitudes and trials of history, will shine for ever along with the undying exploits Chairman Kim Jong Il performed for its consolidation and development.
